Valley teacher wins ...

Neighbors march while carrying the British flag to honor Mr. and Mrs. Jerrald Cerri on the eve of their flight to England.

...royal area sendoff

SAN RAMON — Jerrald Cerri and his family got a royal send-off before flying to England Friday night.

Cerri, who is in charge of the music departments at Country Club and Neil Armstrong schools, went to Bristol on an exchange program. He and his wife and four children will be gone a year.

A group of his friends, headed by Bob Scholl, decided they couldn't let the Cerri's go without some fanfare. The idea for having a surprise parade came up. Then someone thought of getting a British flag and phoned the British Consulate in San Francisco. They graciously loaned their own Union Jack for the occasion.

Cerri expected two couples to drive him to the airport.

Plans snowballed and at 6:45 p.m. about 30 people met in the Country Club School parking lot. Then they began marching toward Davona Drive where the Cerri's were waiting. They played English music over a public address system as they went and gaily waved the Union Jack.

The Cerri's were definitely surprised.

The two couples who drove them to the airport gave a repeat performance of music and flag waving in the San Francisco airport parking lot. They also told the Cerri's if for some reason the British Isles sank before they got there, a consolation prize would be awarded. It would be an all-expense paid two-week trip to Milpitas.

Hurdles to clear VMH planned

It's going to be tougher to get approval for a new hospital, thanks to changes in federal laws which affect their licensing, but if any hospital has the abilities to do it, it's Valley Memorial Hospital, an experienced health professional told The Times last week.

Valley Memorial has been planning to locate its main hospital in Pleasanton on a site near Santa Rita Road and West Las Positas Boulevard. It got the green light on zoning from the planning commission two weeks ago, a decision that must be confirmed by the city council before it takes effect.

But Valley Memorial's ability to get licensed for the new hospital very soon was questioned by an attorney for a doctor with office zoning elsewhere along Santa Rita Road. In addition, Valley Memorial faces competition from a group of doctors who have talked about building a hospital near the future Stoneridge Regional Center.

Mike Leahy, a former staff member for the now defunct Alameda and Contra Costa County Comprehensive Health Planning Boards, had done some study of the Valley Memorial application when he was working with that panel.

Leahy, now on the staff of Children's Hospital in Oakland, said the state and federal governments are getting into the establishment of health service agencies (14 of them in California) and there may be more federal money poured into hospital and medical care. In short, it seems to be the transitional step to whatever sort of nationalized medical health insurance plan is on the way.

This likely will mean a jockeying for position to build more hospitals, because hospitals will be a good investment. But there will be a few things to slow down the application process, and this could spell delays for any proposed new hospital, though Valley Memorial probably has passed a couple of them already, he said.

One delay, which Valley Memorial or anyone else won't have much control over, is a pending Assembly bill which would halt all hospital construction in the state for two years. There is a supposed surplus of 2,000 hospital beds in the Bay Area and many more statewide, so AB 1378 may pass.

But beyond that there will be more regulation, for example environmental impact reports which will slow things down.

"Valley Memorial is one of the few organizations which are competent, which can lobby and get its program accomplished," said Leahy. "They have good administration, they are organized, they have a consultant. Valley Memorial's problem is money; how to find the capital to build in Pleasanton, Livermore or any site."

The federal programs which subsidize hospital construction go to areas with the most medical need, said Leahy. It might be hard for the valley to prove it when competing against such areas as Antioch, East Oakland, West Oakland, Richmond, and eastern Contra Costa County. These are areas with high numbers of people who are medically indigent or who otherwise have no access to their own physician or to a hospital.

As the valley population ages, more local residents will be on Medicare, which would make the federal government more interested in granting subsidies in the valley, but this may take at least three to five years before the population mix would make any significant difference in that regard.

Leahy noted that with the new requirements for more paperwork, including environmental impact reports and architectural and consultants' fees, cost of a hospital project will be higher. Valley Memorial already has done some of those necessary steps, he noted, something which still would lie ahead for the doctors' hospital.

"The doctor's hospital might be able to get financing more easily, but even if it did, Valley Memorial has historic involvement in the valley. It blocked the previous attempt two years ago when doctors wanted to build a hospital in San Ramon."

"That hospital proposal was defeated for sound reasons. It's a matter of having two mediocre hospitals versus one which does all things well," said Leahy. "Emergency rooms, pediatric units, organic special care units would be underutilized if there were two competing hospitals."

"Right now, it's in a hospital's best interest to get a building program under way before the Health Services Agency gets underway. That way they might get things grandfathered in. It should speed up the whole process. You will see a lot of activity in the next six months."

"If you could get financing and approvals on Environmental Impact Reports in the next six months and begin building, the HSA really couldn't touch you," said Leahy. "Getting zoning now would help in that process."

On the other hand, Rick Cabin of the Alameda County Department of Health staff, said that any valley hospital would have to get approval from an HSA already established for the Sacramento area. The one for Alameda County has not been established yet and Valley Memorial and the doctors group would have to apply to the Golden Empire HSA for approval.

Panel to conduct 'fitness' hearing on dismissal of Amador High teacher

PLEASANTON — A three-member panel will conduct a hearing Monday on an Amador Valley Joint High School District charge that Amador Valley High school music teacher Miriam Wain is "unfit for service" and should be dismissed.

The determination panel will consist of one person from the state Office of Administrative Procedures, a district representative and one selected by Mrs. Wain. The atter must have spent five of the last 10 years in the same subject field as the person charged.

Following the hearing, a decision will be rendered with both parties, the district and Mrs. Wain, possessing the right to appeal. Any appeal would be heard in Alameda County Superior Court.

Mrs. Wain has been a teacher in the Amador Valley district the past 10 years, most of her tenure being as a choral music teacher at Amador.

Eight legal-size pages of acts or omissions, under the charge of "evident unfitness for service," are listed.

These alleged acts or omissions state specific dates and places but do not include names of other parties.

The formal statement of charges and recommendation for declaration of intention to dismiss, as outlined in the name of Superintendent Bruce C. Newlin, accuse Mrs. Wain of 16 instances of alleged "inability to properly and adequately organize and plan," as contained in descriptions of various field trips, faculty meetings, and relationships with other faculty members, students and parents.

Twenty other instances of alleged "inability to establish positive relationships with many faculty members, parents, and students" are cited, the statement from Newlin adding alleged occurrences were not limited to the 20.

In addition to her choral music assignments at Amador, Mrs. Wain has worked with choral and little theater productions in the valley.

Danville hit by mild quake

DANVILLE—They've got the shakes down in Danville again, but only a mild case.

Two more minor earthquakes shook the Danville area Saturday afternoon, rattling windows, shaking dishes off shelves and sending some residents to their telephones to call various agencies.

No injuries were reported, and officials say there's little cause for alarm even if the shakes persist.

One unidentified Walnut Creek man said he was sitting upstairs when the quakes struck. "I moved six inches, the house moved six inches."

Other residents thought it was a falling bicycle or merely ignored the whole thing. Effects were felt as far away as San Francisco.

The first shock registered a magnitude of 4 on the Richter scale at the University of California in Berkeley at 3:06 p.m. The second registered 3.8, two minutes later.

Last Sunday a series of tremors rattled the Danville area for about two hours, during which approximately seven quakes registering between 2.1 and 3.5 on the Richter scale were detected by seismologists.

A similar swarm of earthquakes rocked the Danville region for over a month in 1970, when more than 1,000 tremors were recorded.

A team of seismologists from the National Center for Earthquake Research in Menlo Park subsequently reported on those quakes which, at their peak, were occurring at the rate of 85 a day.

"Although the San Francisco Bay region is seismically active, the Danville quakes were unusual. They occurred in sudden bursts," the team observed.

Most occurred along the northwest extension of the Pleasanton fault, and not along the Calaveras fault two miles further west, the team reported.

Some maps identify that extension as the Diablo or Mt. Diablo fault.

The largest earthquake originating in Central Contra Costa occurred along the Calaveras fault on July 2, 1861, reportedly producing an eight-mile-long fissure along the west side of the San Ramon Valley. The magnitude was approximately 7, although there were no instruments to record it then, county officials said.

Official says higher valley court doubtful

Alameda County Bureau

The prospects of a superior court judgeship for the valley are slim, although "contingency plans" once were developed to seat the higher county bench in Dublin in about 10 years, according to newly appointed court administrator Stanley R. Collis.

The possibilities of a superior court bench to serve the more than 100,000 people in the valley was broached last week by municipal court judge Mark Eaton.

According to judge Eaton, the valley's population and case load mix entitle the area to a third municipal court appointment, but a superior court would better serve the needs of residents.

The valley now is served by the joint Livermore - Pleasanton Municipal Court District with judges Eaton and John A. Lewis. Pleasanton's old justice court — the lowest ranking of the three types of courts — was eliminated last year when the joint district was given its second judgeship.

No "hard and fast plans" were made for the superior court bench in Dublin, said Collis, who assumed his post last month. "They were just thinking of it because of the expected population in the Dublin area."

But population projections for the valley have changed considerably of late, and the basis for the superior court may no longer be there.

The valley is a "fairly law-abiding place," said judge Eaton, but divorces and domestic relations cases are the business of superior courts. Hence all marriage dissolutions are handled in Oakland, even though they are routine and a superior court judge could handle them in the valley.

The problem will be alleviated in two years, Collis said, when the Hayward Judicial District goes up to eight, full-time superior court positions.

There currently are one, full-time and one part-time higher court judges in the Hayward district, and the planned court house and detention facility will include larger facilities for additional benches.

Hayward will serve as the South County judicial center, while Oakland will serve the north, said Collis. All cases filed in Livermore automatically will be sent to Hayward.

"It actually gets down to an economic situation," Collis continued. One superior court judge in Livermore would cost more than an additional judge in the Oakland facility because of the necessary ancillary services.

Superior court judgeships are not provided on a population basis, but by the number of cases totaled through "weighted units."

Each higher court judge handles 72,000 weighted units per year, Collis explained, with criminal cases scoring 250 units per court appearance and divorces 32 units. The system is about to be reviewed, he added.

Paul Gobert, 6006 Audrey Ct., Pleasanton, looks over the damage after a car driven by Leroy Grant Dix, 44, of 3615 Virgin Island Court, Pleasanton, rammed through his backyard fence off Hopyard Road about 4:40 p.m. Friday. Dix lost control of his vehicle while southbound on Hopyard, struck another vehicle driven by Sergi Krasko, 25, of Livermore, and another driven by Gary Williams, 21, of Livermore, before crashing through the fence. He suffered multiple lacerations and a possible broken nose. Dix was treated at Valley Memorial Hospital and transferred to Oak Knoll Naval Hospital. Pleasanton police officer Jim Swan is continuing investigation of the accident.

Following the joint evaluation session, Amador board members will act on a paving contract award for a parking lot at Foothill, award a bid for Regional Occupational Program office equipment, and execute a contract for football field lighting at Foothill. The latter is being awarded to Gould Electric.

even T-shirts as the event approaches is a festive balloon. Pictured are Bev Hamlin, publicist, Carol Chargin, responsible for banners, Barbara Kamina, the silk-screen artist and logo designer, and Jan Brice, art-in-action chairman.

Board filing deadline nears for East Bay Parks District

Leshner News Bureau

OAKLAND — With only five days left before the filing deadline, none of the prospective East Bay Regional Park District candidates has filed.

A total of 13 people have picked up nomination papers for the four seats. Included are the four incumbents.

The largest race, if all file, would be in incumbent Mary Jeffers' Ward 1 which covers Orinda, north of Highway 24.

Ms. Jeffers, a Berkeley environmentalist, has taken out papers as have Morris Hurley, a San Francisco Community College District employee from Piedmont; Don Miller, an anthropologist from Berkeley; Stanley Shalit, an educational planner from Oakland; and Norman Solomon, a Berkeley artist.

Incumbent Fred Blumberg, a 12-year-veteran, could face a challenge from three other residents of Ward 6 which stretches from Antioch to Walnut Creek.

Taking out papers along with Blumberg, a stockbroker from Lafayette, are Audrey Bramhall, 30 Fraser Court, Walnut Creek, chairman of the Walnut Creek open space board; Fred Tabor, 336 Borica Drive, Danville, businessman; and Norman Sims, 785 El Pintado Drive, Danville, no occupation listed.

A fourth person returned her papers saying she did not intend to file. She was identified as Naomi Lau, a businesswoman from 1475 Marchbanks Drive, Walnut Creek.

Director Harlan Kessel, an employee of the University of California Press and an Oakland resident, was appointed just over four months ago to fill the unexpired term of Clyde Woolridge, an Oakland businessman.

Kessel has taken out papers for Ward 2, which includes Canyon, portions of Lafayette and Orinda south of the freeway, and St. Mary's College.

Also taking out papers in Ward 2 was Sunnie Richardson, of Oakland, who did not list an occupation. Richardson had previously been listed as a resident of Ward 4, but a check by district officials showed he lives just inside Ward 2.

Incumbent Chairman John J. Leavitt, Alameda businessman, could have opposition from William R. Hester, of Oakland, employed by Owens-Illinois in Lafayette.

Both have taken out papers.

LIVERMORE — a 24-hour hair-styling marathon with proceeds going to Muscular Dystrophy begins at 9 this morning at Hair We Are, 1577 Olivina.

Paradise Hawaii Theatre - Restaurant on Post Street in San Francisco is sending Hawaiian delicacies and will present Hawaiian dances during the marathon, which goes from 9 this morning to 9 a.m. Monday.

Petsas says any Valley music or dance groups are invited to perform at the shop on Olivina during the marathon.

"We want to do anything we can to demonstrate the need for combating MD," Petsas says.

Petsas and three or four members of his staff will be on duty. No appointments are necessary and valley residents are encouraged to drop by and donate to MD, whether they wish their hair styled or not.

Hazzeltine biggest election spender

By PAT KEEBLE
Leshar News Bureau

MARTINEZ—The five "winners" in the June supervisorial election spent just under $80,000, while nine losers spent just about as much.

The figures were revealed in the final campaign financial statements just filed with the County Elections Office.

In this case, the term "winners" is a misnomer since four of the top vote getters won only places in a runoff in the Nov. 2 election. Only Nancy Fahden of Martinez has secured a seat, having defeated incumbent Al Dias of El Sobrante outright in the June primary.

In the third district, neither Geno Banducci of Orinda nor Robert Schroder of Walnut Creek was able to get the 50 per cent plus one vote needed to win, while in the fifth, there will be a run-off between Eric Hasseltine of Danville and Louise Giersch of Antioch.

Hasseltine remained the top spender when final figures for the primary campaign were tallied. He reported $33,018 in receipts, and expenditures of $24,915. The difference is mostly accounted for by the fact a large percentage of the receipts was in the form of non-monetary contributions for signs and printing.

Several of the candidates or their spouses contributed hefty amounts to their own campaigns or campaign committees.

The champion in this category was John Bauer of Orinda in the third district, whose personal contribution of $12,966 made up the bulk of his campaign committee's $14,896 in expenditures.

Mrs. Fahden and her husband, dentist Wilbur Fahden, contributed $3,100 to her campaign.

In the third district, Banducci spent $4,440, and Chris Adams' husband, Robert, research executive with Chevron Research Corp., submitted $4,972.

In the fifth district, Floyd Sims of Alamo contributed $4,000 to his campaign, Earl MacIntyre of Pittsburg contributed $2,321, and Mrs. Giersch gave $516.

The following list includes the total receipts and expenditures for the campaign, and contributors of $100 or more during the reporting period May 28 through Aug. 11. In all cases, major expenditures were those for printing and mailing of campaign brochures, and campaign advertising. Contributions are cumulative totals.

FIFTH DISTRICT

ERIC HASSELTINE. Receipts $33,018, including $7,949 in non-monetary contributions; expenditures $24,915. Major contributors: At $750—Dame' Construction Co., San Ramon.

At $500—Section 17 Associates, Danville; Shappell Industries, Sunnyvale. At $450—Board of Realtors, Los Angeles. At $300—Contra Costa Employees Association, Martinez.

At $200—Community Cause Election Committee, Orinda; Gelco Development Co. (Developer Harlan Geldermann), Danville; L. F. Zaharis, farmer, San Leandro; Raymon Zaharis, farmer, San Ramon; Kay Building Co., Burlingame; Mobil Home Expo (county lessee), Concord.

At $100—Gordon Ball, general contractor, Danville; Antioch Firestone Inc., Antioch; D. J. S. Development Co., Millbrae; Patrick Dolan, Dolan Lumber, Pittsburg; Robert Mainhardt, president, M. B. Associates, Pleasanton.

Non-monetary: $3,956 worth of printing and mailing of campaign brochures, by Contra Costa Committee of Political Education AFL-CIO.

LOUISE GIERSCHE. Receipts $16,054, including non-monetary contributions of $1,694; expenditures $14,225; deficit $981. Major contributors: At $450—Board of Realtors, Walnut Creek. At $175—Harry Wynn, Dentist, Antioch.

Large-type books, too

Outreach Program brings the library to you

By LILLY AULT

Working a year as a volunteer with the "Outreach Program" of the Livermore Library led to a full time job for Peggy Carter, outreach librarian at the city facility.

"I got out of school and didn't want to sit around," said Peggy, "and Livermore was just starting this program so I decided to volunteer. A year later the program was adopted and the job was offered to me." The program has been in operation for two years now.

"I also work with the school libraries as liaison between the school and the library," she advised. "With this set up we know their problems as to what they need and they know what services we can offer them."

The Outreach Program, as explained by Peggy, is a "service to shut-ins." Shut-ins include persons who are unable to get out to the library to pick up books for reading.

"Right now our main service is to senior citizens," stated Peggy. "We are serving approximately 100 shut-ins. I have ten volunteers who work with me and who go out to eight rest homes in Livermore."

"We would like to extend this service to anyone who is unable to come into the library because of illness or lack of transportation."

"One of my volunteers is an exquisite senior citizen who does a lot of my clerical work," said Peggy. "Another lovely senior citizen drives to visit the shut-ins and delivers books to them. Most of the volunteers I get really enjoy the work and have been with the program since it started."

Books are delivered every third week to individuals requesting the service. The number of books delivered to each one depends on what has been requested and how many books that particular person feels he can read in the three week period.

Reference books, magazines, eight millimeter entertaining film and records are also delivered when requested. "The Outreach Program offers the same services to those on the outside as they would receive if they were able to come into the library," said Peggy.

Another service offered by the library is a supply of large print books. "These were mainly purchased with the senior citizen in mind," said the young librarian, "as they have a difficult time reading the regular print in most books. However, we find there are other people who also enjoy reading the large print."

There are approximately 300 books of the large print on the shelves. "They are a little more expensive to purchase," said Peggy, "and we are dealing with little older books because of this. Your latest novels do not immediately go into the large printing."

Receiving books can take any where from three to four weeks or longer depending where they are being ordered from. Some of the editions come as far away as England. "It is to be more difficult to get the larger print books, Peg-

lifestyle

The supply of large print books at the Livermore Public Library will increase, thanks to the local Auxiliary 609 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles represented by Freda DePuy who presented Peggy Carter with $100 check for the purchase of more books.

gy said, "but more and more stimulation is being shown toward this type of printing." Books are ordered from a catalogue which is mailed out periodically.

Individuals using the Outreach Program receive a list from which they can order books that are available.

"The softbound pocket books are quite popular with the seniors," states Peggy. "This is because some of the elderly have arthritis in their hands and find it more difficult to hold the hard-bound, bigger books. Those seniors having this problem," she goes on to say, "have to sacrifice the larger print for the softbound, smaller book." A magnifying glass for enlarging print is available for library use.

From time to time Peggy makes trips out to the various rest homes to "see that everything is going okay and what problems they might be having if any in regard to the library service."

Because this is a city funded program rather than a federally funded program, Peggy feels it is more of an "on-going project" rather than just a "now" type operation. "Federally funded projects generally get going then lose their financing," she said. "With the city funded operation, I feel as long as the people show they want the service it should continue for a long time."

Without outside clubs donating to purchase the large print books for the elderly, Peggy feels the supply would be much smaller. Such a donation was made last week by the president of the local Auxiliary 609 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Freda DePuy.

Mrs. DePuy presented Peggy with a $100 check to be used for purchasing large print books for use by the elderly. This is the second year such a presentation will be duplicated across the United States and Canada by Eagle Auxiliaries.

Auxiliaries receive the gift money from the Eagles Memorial Foundation in appreciation of their cooperation and support of the senior citizen oriented Golden Eagle Fund which the foundation administers. Eagles raise money for this fund which makes available grants to charitable organizations working on some project of benefit to the elderly.

According to Mrs. Ruth Peterson of the Alameda County Library service, an Outreach Program is now active in Pleasanton with a Dublin service scheduled for this coming fall.

"Right now we need volunteers," stated Mrs. Peterson. Anyone interested in helping in either Pleasanton or Dublin with the program, may contact her at 794-6393 or the Pleasanton Library at 462-3535 or the Dublin Library at 828-1315. These two libraries are under the jurisdiction of the Alameda County. Also interested in receiving services from the program are also requested to contact their local library.

Anyone interested in volunteering for the Livermore Outreach Program or requesting service, may do so by contacting Peggy at the Livermore Library at 447-2376.

Two feminist victories won

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two bills representing victories for the feminist movement are awaiting Gov. Edmund Brown, Jr.'s signature this week.

The state Senate Wednesday night gave 32-0 approval to the measures that would rewrite California law to eliminate the masculine gender when a reference is intended to cover men and women and ensure that women and men receive equal pay for equal work for the same employer.

Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento, said his bill would make it easier for employees to file discrimination suits because state law now allows different rates of pay under certain circumstances.

In California lawbooks, most references to "his" would be changed to "his or her" and "men" would become "persons" under the bill by Sen. James Mills, D-San Diego.

Rodda's bill is SB 1051, Mills' is SB 2060.

such games as Toss Game Bowling, Pie Toss and an extra special attraction of "Sophie The Psychic."

County historical society convenes annual meeting

Some seem to think Bicentennial celebrations belong only to the East Coast where the big battles of the American Revolution were won.

Not true, says the Alameda County Historical Society which celebrates the Bicentennial at its annual meeting Wednesday, Aug. 25 at the Vista Room of Lakeside Park Garden Center in Oakland (opposite Children's Fairland).

The 8 p.m. program features a 45-minute color film entitled "An Autumn Visit to the Land of America's Birth" to be narrated by its creator, Oliver Applegate, Jr. Applegate is a member and former director of the Society of Western Artists. On exhibit will be several of his paintings of the West on subjects from Alaska to Mexico.

Also shown will be a rare oil loaned by Lloyd Barron, the work of Irish Artist W. A. Coulter, renowned for his early marine paintings. The oil depicts the old stern-wheeler Mt. Eden on San Francisco Bay. Lloyd is a descendant of Richard Barron, who operated Barron's Landing and owned the schooner Mt. Eden.

Both Barron and Applegate are members of the ACHS board of directors.

The evening's events will be followed by light refreshments.

Renaissance revived

And so, 'tis time again to don the garments of Merrie Olde England and abandon ye the modern world to step back four hundred years to the Renaissance.

The stage is set for your excursion to the 10th Annual Renaissance Pleasure Faire opening Aug. 21 for six weekends (including Labor Day) at ye olde Oak Forest in Novato. Each day's festivities last from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

So let the merriment be thy measure, jog thy deep and merry way to the faire where jesters and mountebands, musicians and jugglers await ye in the forest. Craftsmen have set out their finest wares. Merry hawkers wait their wily words of hearty food and drink on the scene of 16th Century England.

ONE VIEW

Home rule

There are those who find fault with the only two "city governments" operating within this two-county expanse know as "The Valley."

Others, however, are so disenchanted with "county rule" they would convert such bastions of unincorporated bliss as Dublin and San Ramon into cities of their very own.

Behind each of those thrusts, we suppose, is the basic American credo for "as little government as possible ... left alone to do our own thing." A lot of us like to say that; few really believe it ... fewer still practice it.

The truth is we are a structured people, bound up by the need for rules, reliant on services, trodding in lock - step down the same paths. "Free enterprise" is a commercial slogan, rather than an individual choice.

The political conventions of recent note brought home this point. The Democrats, true to their history, promised more ... more benefits, more assurances, more of the good and necessary things of life, for more people.

But even the Republicans get caught up in this "What we can do for you" oratory. They had better, if they have any hope at all of recapturing the White House.

"Well, the Inner City and the ghetto couldn't survive without that kind of federal help," the New Society's defenders point out. True, perhaps.

But does that also apply to prosperous Suburbia? Consider for a moment our own situation, in "The Valley" of clean industry, thriving commerce, and the ghetto of $80,000 homes.

What park in your community has been developed and sustained without at least some federal or state dollars? How many police officers would be cut from your neighborhood force if it weren't for "Federal revenue sharing"?

That new fire truck. The Muni Airport. The air conditioned school down the street. The "Community College" down the highway. All of them are reliant, one way or another, on federal and state funds.

"But it was our money to begin with, they took it away in taxes, and now they send part of it back. What's wrong with that?"

What's wrong with it is that we are like prisoners grown grateful for any crumb thrown by our captor. We forget how we came by this present incarceration (Some of us even enjoy it.) The only important thing now is that "We get our share!"

And so it is an enclave of lovely homes and handsome incomes even such as ours can no longer sustain itself. The real tragedy is many of us have forgotten what it might be like ... to pay our own way.

A city ... particularly one at our level ... comes as close to that ideal as is possible, in this nation and in this century. Faulted, yes Regionalized, true. Caught up in outfall lines and transit districts and pollution controls that threaten to make our cities little more than digits in Big Daddy's computer.

But it is still the best hope, for the freedom-loving nation that Thomas Jefferson saw as a gathering of strong and independent communities, the unquestioned master of state and federal overment.

The master has become servant, it seems. But we are still not slaves. Not yet. Another generation, another century perhaps, will judge just how much personal pride is left. Just how determined we are to remain "the land of the free, the home of the brave."

Prime acres

What is "prime farmland"? A University of California economist recently put forth that question, and the answers he came up with are of interest to the nation, and to this particular basin.

William W Wood, Jr. suggests that "there is no way to come up with a scientific system for identifying prime agricultural land without setting social priorities." And for that standard, Wood adds, "there is no scientific basis at all."

One man's prime ground is another man's excess acres, Wood seems to be telling us. "Land appropriate for the production of avocados in Southern California or blueberries in New England is less significant to the national interest than corn land in Iowa," it might be presumed. To which Mr. Wood adds — "Should that decision be made for society by the land classifiers?"

Or the developers? Or even the "planning experts"? The point is here is that we are a nation goaded into serious, irrevocable decisions as to land use on the skimpiest of values, often by the least enlightened decision-maker.

Our own Valley finds some of this state's finest growing ground given over to the one-time harvest of gravel. Still other "prime acres" have of course been lost forever to housing. The unwanted, unyielding hillsides, on the other hand, remain pretty much untouched.

As these "commercial uses" come into harsh conflict with our new-found "ecological concerns" we often find sewer and water lines laid through virgin acres that might never be developed, while some of our best growing land is wedged hard against the urban scene with unhappy results for grower and home owner.

There must be a better way, William Wood contends. It is a warning long overdue.

Special taxing

The popular notion that "it's the municipal payroll that's bankrupting local taxpayers" ain't necessarily so.

No less an authority than the California Taxpayers Association has come up with figures that indicate the real threat to a community's fiscal health might be those "special taxing districts." They are numerous, and they are growing.

What is worse, much of the debt being incurred by these "special agencies" is not even subject to voter consideration. The taxpayer may wind up paying, one way or another. But it is very often "taxation without consent."

In 1949 there were 1797 of these taxing agencies in California. Fifteen years later that number had grown to 3524. In 1974 — if water districts were included in that total — they would represent a staggering sum of 4601.

The debt being incurred by these agencies is rising at an "alarming" rate ... often through the "non profit corporation" route that is so popular with local government these days.

In fiscal 1973, Alameda County reported long term debt of $9.7 million for Joint Powers Agencies; $35.8 million for Non - Profit Corporations; $7.6 million for Housing and Urban Renewal Agencies. And all of that debt had been incurred without voter approval!

For Contra Costa County, the total for those same three categories was in excess of $24.5 million.

The point of all this is that the community's "good faith and financial resources" are often being pledged to underwrite projects (everything from sports' coliseums to parking lots) without the prior consent of the electorate.

CalTax suggests this is not a healthy trend.

The week in retrospect

Need for arena

This valley is in dire need of an auditorium - arena suited to theatrical presentations, lectures and exhibits.

Discussed on and off for several years by community groups, the fact is the area doesn't even possess a suitable auditorium the equivalent of Chabot College - community auditorium in Hayward or one used by Civic Arts Repertory in downtown Walnut Creek.

For an area with a population in excess of 100,000, we should have one indoor arena that would be available year-round for plays, concerts, lectures and large group meetings.

The present assemblage ranges from semi-dilapidated to functional.

This includes the Livermore High School auditorium, Amador Valley High School auditorium, Veterans Hall in Pleasanton, little theatres at Granada, Dublin and California high schools, Fairgrounds Amphitheatre, and various junior high school multi-purpose rooms and churches.

Largest capacity is the Amphitheatre, 3,000, and subject to all sorts of weather — often uncomfortable.

Biggest indoor capacity is that of St. Augustine's Church, approximately 900. Amador Valley's High auditorium, which has undergone some refurbishing, seats about 600.

Facilities at Granada, Dublin and California High in San Ramon are certainly adequate for school productions and some community events, but not for attractions of valley-wide interest.

It is clear that any future efforts for establishment of an auditorium will have to be cooperative ... between a municipality and a private party, school district or county.

Their was brief talk a couple of years ago of putting a roof over the Amphitheatre, creating an arena much like that at the Concord Pavilion. However, the County Fair Association will not be in a position to consider this in the foreseeable future.

Nor is any school district in any shape to finance major improvements or expansion of an auditorium.

The one answer could be Chabot College's Valley campus. Dr. Barbara Mertes, Dean of the Valley campus, is sympathetic toward establishment of an auditorium or hall that would be shared by the college and valley community.

The Chabot campus in Hayward has a very attractive, 1,500-seat auditorium that was financed by the Hayward Area Park and Recreation District and the South County Community College District.

Though its capacity is seldom taxed to capacity, it is in frequent use and is suitable for not only college events but major area-wide attractions ... such as the recent stage play "40 Carats" with Marjorie Lord, and the upcoming appearance of internationally-renowned folk singer Odette.

It is also used for lectures, movies, student body and community meetings. This is exactly what the valley needs ... though the capacity might be more realistic at 1,100 or 1,200.

The one drawback of such a facility at Chabot Valley campus would be access. It could only be reached by car, even from the nearest residences in Livermore.

But that could be overcome by working with AC Transit to route schedules to the campus. Actually, the transportation situation in the light of an expanding Chabot - Valley campus is a separate question in itself.

For the time being, interested cultural groups in the valley should get together with Dr. Mertes and her staff and sound out the possibilities.

Support police

Editor, The Times:

The letter to the Times from O.K. Beall "Support police" Wednesday August 18, said everything that a lot of us have been thinking for a long time.

I too believe Officer Cobles and the whole Pleasanton Police Dept. need a few more pats on the back instead of a kick in the can.

Thank you Mr. Or Mrs. O.K. Beall for standing up for our police department.

Shop center flap

Editor, The Times:

The actions involving the Berattis Shopping Center at Hopyard and Valley over the past few months appear to have been manipulated. The purpose was to provide a larger shopping center than was feasible on the commercially zoned acreage to the detriment of adjacent homeowners. The Times has given excellent coverage to this ...

1. There was a definite attempt at "backdoor" rezoning involving the use of an adjacent public and institutionally zoned lot for parking at the shopping center. (Times, July 4)

2. The shopping center was zoned Central Commercial (CC), but is located in a residential area, which more properly calls for a Neighborhood Commercial (CN) designation. The CC designation allows much broader usage, much of which is not compatible with adjacent homes. A builder would prefer CC because of the greater latitude. This is an apparent violation of the intent of the zoning ordinance. (Times, July 29)

3. There was an elaborate and generous financial arrangement involving the developer and the adjacent bank for which Mayor Philcox is an officer. The developer had only to come up with a modest $3,000, with the bank financing 97 percent. According to one source, this is a most generous loan for a vacant lot with no sewer connections. (Times, August 13)

I hold the view that Mr. Philcox should have abstained from voting on this matter. I am more concerned that the electorate take action to see that the Planning Commission and City Council are comprised of individuals who are not self seeking. Pleasanton has a large commuter population. I suggest more representation from this segment simply because they are more apt to act in the general good.

Home TV

The exciting and imaginative world of local television run by citizens themselves will be discussed tomorrow night at the Pleasanton City Council.

Its implications for Pleasanton and the rest of the valley are important. Citizens will ask the city council for the cable TV franchise to contribute significant funding for a local television corporation run by citizens.

The idea is to set up a structure where residents can produce their own television programs. People with hobbies, members of local social clubs all have ideas for programs of interest to many local folks. The implications for better communications between city government and residents is interesting, too.

A program scheduled for next Thursday night in Hayward is good example of communication from government. Mayor Ilene Weinreb will appear to talk about local traffic problems and handle phone calls on that topic. Television, with its ability to flash maps and charts into the citizens' homes and handle direct feedback, is the next best thing to going down to city hall.

The cable TV firm in Hayward has done a good job of providing equipment and salaried personnel to the citizens group in that city. The firm pays three salaries to people directed by the citizens group. They are the public access coordinator, the video technician, and a part-time secretary. The video technician is necessary to keep the equipment running, but more important is the job of public access coordinator. That person is a community organizer who teaches citizens how to run the equipment, gives tips on how to do programming, and promotes the idea of community access throughout the city.

The Hayward firm also provides a large, well-lit studio and three color cameras, plus two or three portable video - tape cameras. There are 29 channels, the usual 12 plus the remainder available for local programs. The city of Hayward uses one of the channels. The Portuguese community leases another channel. Anyone can go in and rent a channel for $10 an hour and put on his or her own program. Or just sit in front of the camera for an hour and talk. They believe in full public access over there.

I learned some of my technical knowledge of TV in adult school classes with that Hayward group and I was favorably impressed with the way they ran the whole operation. The 20 hours of local programming that is done each week was done well, judging by the work I saw.

The first beginnings of public access are stirring in Pleasanton. And since the local Televue cable franchise will be able to beam local shows to Liver-more and Dublin beginning in October, things may start stirring in those communities, too. The very first program apparently will be one which Darla Stevens has been taping all summer for a half hour "magazine" show in the fall. I think that once people get acquainted with public access and see what is possible, the interest will snowball.

But it won't be done easily unless Televue Systems provides enough technical equipment and personnel to do a good job and tap the local interest. That's where the city council comes in. Televue is asking for a rate increase tomorrow night.

Some of the profits Televue will make from the $1 increase they are requesting could be plowed back into community access television. The Federal Communications Commission licenses broadcasting stations based on the principle that the airwaves belong to the people. So while Televue is a private business, it has a certain responsibility to the public because of its license. And while the federal law about public access is very lax in favor of the cable companies, cities, as Hayward demonstrated, can require the firms to do a great deal for public access.

Although Pleasanton already has signed its franchise for the period from 1963 to 1983, it seems to me that the council could require some public access services as part of that $1 increase. Perhaps a brief delay in the rate increase request could foster the beginning of a strong, well-done community access effort, with all parties involved meeting to build the foundation.

Round the town

President Gerald R. Ford
Somewhere between Kansas
City and Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

I am writing on behalf of those millions of Americans who really came to know and love you through the medium of the media, over the past several days.

Just when we began to believe that "the Office of the Presidency is drifting away from the people," we are deluged with poignant close-ups of you and your family. Particularly your family.

Which brings me to the reason for this letter. We Americans (simple folk that we are) have developed a deep respect for Mrs. Ford's talents as a dancer.

"My goodness," I overheard a truck driver say whilst watching the TV at Joe's Bar and Grill just the other day, "I had no idea Betty Ford could dance like THAT!"

There were others, admittedly, who had an even greater respect for Nancy Reagan's flashing smile.

"Did you ever see anybody flash a smile like Nancy flashes a smile?" was the question put at the 19th hole on Tuesday. I observed several players laying down their putters just to watch Nancy smile.

Jimmy Carter's lovely wife, as we all know, is famed for her grits. Not to mention her peanut brittle.

"Nobody, but NOBODY makes peanut brittle the way Miz Carter do," was the opinion offered by one of Carter's faithful hands, being interviewed on "Meet The Press."

It becomes clear then, Mr. President, that this nation is enamored with the candidates' wives. From Betty Ford's frug to Joan Mondale's macramé.

Americans are clinging to every step, caught by each new stitch.

Which now requires me to ask — "What did Mary Elizabeth Dole ever do for her country?"

Now, please don't think that I am challenging your right to name your own vice presidential team. Ronnie and friends pretty well beat that item to death last Wednesday night.

I am even convinced that Senator Robert Dole is a solid choice for the vice presidency. (Anyone who can survive World War II and Watergate should be able to endure Henry Kissinger.)

Yes, I am aware of his "rugged campaign style." Sure, he served two terms in the United States Senate, not to mention four terms as prosecuting attorney in Russell County. Farmer, lawyer, sportsman. All that is well and good.

But dammit, Mr. President, you and I both know that it is on the talents of Betty Ford and Mary Elizabeth Dole that your success in November is tied.

Can Mary Elizabeth roller skate? Does she raise rabbits? Ever been president of the USO? — the DAR? — how about the ERA?

The point is, Mr. President, we simply have to come up with something unique, something very charismatic about the wife of your running mate.

It is not just a question of keeping up with the Carter - Mondale team (God knows, Betty is more than a match for that tiresome Carter woman), but we have to think of the media, Mr. President. Particularly the television networks and wire services.

"Get me a shot of Betty Ford doing a two - step with the Shah of Oilran," a Washington editor demands, and presto, four lovely photos appear, each showing Betty and the Shah in a different pose.

"Let's close with a closeup of Mrs. Carter and little what's - her - face climbing a tree together," Walter Cronkite orders. And that's the way it is, from CBS - TV.

I would hope by now that you are getting the point, Mr. President. I am a loyal (although uncommitted) citizen. I plan to vote for the very best man available to lead our country and the free world through the perilous years ahead. I am free, unfettered and unfettered.

But please, Mr. President, don't ask me to support a Republican ticket this November that is unable to come up with a vice president's wife who can give us that little something extra if you know what I mean.

Mary Elizabeth Dole may be a Federal Trade Commissioner in Washington, but she's little more than a big fat zero to those millions of Americans who have learned to rate our presidential and vice presidential wives with the best of stage and screen.

The thought of your beloved Betty dancing her heart out from here to November, while Mary Elizabeth sits around the Trade Commission, is enough to make a Shirley Temple fan cry.

Yours very faithfully
John Q. Publican.

New bowling addition

A addition to the Granada Bowl is shown here from two sides in a sketch. Groundbreaking for the bowling addition was last week.

Quake defense tops Dallas

SAN JOSE — With less than four minutes to play in the San Jose Earthquakes 2-0 North American Soccer League quarter-final win over Dallas here Friday night, the frantic Tornado launched a frenzied attack in front of the 'Quakes net.

With goalie Mike Hewitt prone on the grass after saving the first of a fusillade of Dallas attempts, Kyle Rote and Tommy Tynan combined for half a dozen follow up shots which met only with rejection at the hands of San Jose's vaunted "No Goal Patrol."

In the midst of the Earthquakes' locker room celebration, some one remarked, "Geez, it looked like they had six goalies out there."

Bearded defender Laurie Calloway, who was aggressive to the extent of a game-high five fouls and a first half yellow card, grinned, "We don't need a goalie."

And while Hewitt, acclaimed the 'Quakes most valuable player by San Jose season - ticket holders, might protest in the name of job security, Calloway (the 'Quakes prodigal son after a brief jump to the now all - but - defunct Golden Bay Buccaneers early in the year) struck a note of truth.

Physically spent after beating Los Angeles, 2-0, at Ownby Stadium Wednesday, the Tornado hadn't enough wind left for the slam-bang battle before 15,135 in Spartan Stadium. True, Dallas unleashed 27 shots; but only six required Hewitt's attention.

"I expected a bit more offense from them," said Hewitt, who gave up three goals to the Tornado in Dallas during May before shutting them out twice in a row at home. "The Aztecs must have taken a lot out of them."

Hewitt joined Calloway in praising the San Jose defense.

"The defenders and midfielders put an awful lot of pressure on them and the forwards came back to help out well," he explained. "We had them bottled up most of the game."

Between two goals by all-time NASL scoring leader Ilia Mitic, playing as usual with his 35-year old legs heavily wrapped, and San Jose's defensive heroics; there were generous helpings of on-field brutality.

The Tornado, fighting wearily for its play-off life, was whistled for 25 fouls while the 'Quakes were caught 15 times. Referee Gordon Hill issued four yellow cards, all in the first half, to Buzz Demling, Calloway, Steve Pecher and Kevin Kewley before chasing San Jose striker Paul Child with a red ticket 11 minutes into the second.

"He was trying to cut around behind me," recalled Child, explaining the collision with Pecher, with whom he had exchanged blows in the first half, that led to his expulsion. "I caught him with my heel and the linesman told the ref to throw me out."

"It blew my mind when I saw the red card," he continued. Hill's a pretty intelligent ref, I was shocked when he took the linesman's word for it." The ejection of Child, who assisted on both Mitic goals, limited the 'Quakes to 10 players for the rest of the contest, prompting coach Gabbo Gavric to replace a recently injured player with a just-recovering player.

Johnny Moore, who broke his right wrist in San Jose's final regular season game at San Antonio, was a surprise starter, but realized the club could not afford to stick with a right wing hampered by a cast while playing a man short.

"With only ten men, you have to sub for the guy who's suspect," he agreed, adding he could go the full 90 minutes if the 'Quakes need him later in the play-offs. Moore, a former Livermore semi-pro player, said the injury didn't bother him till after the game.

"It's very painful now," he winced on his way to the shower, "because of all the blood that was pumped into it."

Julie Vee, who made his first appearance in since June in relief of Moore, was encouraged by his own performance.

"I felt good," said Vee, who admitted he was hoping for more than the 32 minutes of playing time he got. "We had a lot of chances after I went in and Dallas is one of the best."

But it wasn't a case of simply picking up where he left off.

"(All-NASL wing Tony) Simoes set me up for a breakaway and I took the ball nicely," he recalled. "But in a touch my timing was gone." Dallas goalie Ken Cooper made a rolling save on the play when Vee let the ball get too far ahead of him.

"It was the first one, though," he reasoned. "What are you going to do? I wanted to take it around the goalie, but I blew it."

Tuttle does his own thing, takes golf over basketball

Scott Tuttle doesn't like people telling him what to do. And that's the reason he pursued golf in favor of basketball.

Tuttle, a junior currently on the University of Oregon golf team (on an athletic scholarship) said basketball, a sport he was offered numerous scholarships, "is a team thing. That's why I decided against it."

"I don't like a coach telling me what to do ... the responsibilities I'd rather have the options." And that's the main reason Tuttle chose Eugene, Ore.

"Other schools wanted me to play basketball, and golf second. At Oregon I play golf, and they play basketball, if I want to."

A 1974 graduate of San Ramon Valley High School, Tuttle isn't about to short change his future. He's eyeing the big time on the professional golf tour.

"It's something I want to try," said Tuttle of joining the tour. "I like traveling and it seems exciting."

"I'd like to earn a living that way. I've worked years at it. I feel I owe it to myself to play with the best."

Tuttle, who explained it's been his life-long ambition to become a pro said, "It depends on how much my game progresses."

"It would be a crushing experience to find out you're not good enough, once in the pro ranks."

"Most people don't try unless their game is good enough." And that's reason number three why the Ducks and Tuttle have been in the NCAA collegiate championships twice and, more importantly, ranked in the nation's top 10.

"We had good players," recalled Tuttle. "Peter Jacobsen (who graduated) and Jeff Sanders (returning) were all-Americans."

"Oregon hasn't had the national recognition as in past years when I was a freshman we were ranked 15th. Last year we were 10th."

Tuttle, who stands six feet and weighs 173, is more than actively involved at Oregon. From five until eight in the morning he works in a tavern.

From eight until noon the former Northern California high school golf champion is in the classroom. The remainder of the day is spent banging golf balls.

"Golfers," explained Tuttle, "take a little more than four years to graduate. We're gone half the spring term in tournaments."

Commenting on students who are just in college for an education via their parents' money, Tuttle said, "I don't think school should be just an academic thing."

"It's important to cope with problem situations. When you're more involved you meet people."

"If you're forced to deal with people you'll do all right later on. I wouldn't trade what I'm doing to study all day. I'm pleased with what I'm doing. I wouldn't change it."

Tuttle became interested in golf through his father, Leighton, who attended Oregon State University and had many offers himself to turn professional.

"I never had a lesson. My father taught me everything," he noted.

Tuttle, who picks Oregon to finish about fifth in the nation next year, is away from campus all but three weeks in the spring term.

"We go all over the country," he said. "I've been in every region of the country ... Houston, New Mexico, Arizona, Ohio (just to name a few). Next year we're going to New York, New Mexico, Guadalajara, Mexico, and there's a possibility we might go to Hawaii."

"We work really hard. From the first day of school until the end of the year. The obligations to the school are really demanding."

With a handicap of zero, Tuttle, who says he's big enough to generate power, said the last couple of years' he's been plagued with the high finish.

"Lots of seconds and thirds," quipped Tuttle. "But there's a helluva lot of people running around who would like to have that." In full, Scott is playing consistent golf.

"It's harder and harder to win at each level you move up to. It's a new learning process. There's an adjusting process. You can't get dejected."

Richards wins opener

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Dr. Renee Richards, the transsexual tennis player, won her first-round match at the Tennis Week Open Saturday, besting Cathy Beene of Houston 6-0, 6-2, in 46 minutes.

Dr. Richards, 42, who underwent sex-change surgery last year, took 16 minutes to win the first set before the half-filled stadium center court at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club.

Miss Beene, 24, a former national collegiate doubles champion, won six points in the first set.

At 3-1 in the second set, Dr. Richards, sweating profusely in temperatures over 90 degrees, began to slow down, losing her only service of the day.

But then Miss Beene, who double-faulted 11 times in the match, lost her service.

The entry of Dr. Richards here led to the withdrawal of 25 women players. Many of the dropouts said they did not feel Dr. Richards should compete in a women's event.

Portions of the match were to be shown later Saturday on ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports."

After the match, Dr. Richards said her immediate objective "is to pursue my rights to play in women's tournaments because it is a right I am entitled to as a woman, like any other woman."

She said legal action to gain entry into the U.S. Open was still possible, but she said she planned to "continue to apply for various tournaments." Dr. Richards said she planned to accept an invitation to play in the Australian Open.

A few tournaments in southern California are next on her schedule.

Dr. Richards, who lived in New York when she was Dr. Richard Raskind, said tournament officials in California "are all supporting me, which is an ironic thing, since I've only lived there for eight months."

Poor attendance

Altamont racing cancelled

Sagging attendance and low driver participation have been cited as the two main reasons for the cancellation of the remainder of Altamont Speedway's racing schedule this season.

There were three nights of racing left on the schedule, including last Friday's session.

According to Bob Beck, president of the Golden State Racing Association of San Jose which sponsors the Altamont racing, the organization hopes to start the competition again next season.

"We still like Friday night as the day for the racing competition," he admitted. "We're just going to re-group and hope to improve next year."

What was the reason for the sagging attendance this past season?

"Probably the poor weather conditions at Altamont," Beck replied. "It gets awfully chilly and windy there. Also, we had a lot of competition from Clovis and other race tracks."

Beck admits the GSRA lost money at Altamont this season but refuses to discuss the amount.

"We didn't lose that much money because we weren't in competition that much at Altamont," he went on. "However, it was fairly high for the amount of time we were there."

Another reason the races were scheduled was that there are other important races at other tracks in the next two months, according to Beck.

"There's a big meet at Clovis September 3 that would have conflicted with ours," he said. "There would be just too many other races going on that would affect our crowds and drivers' participation."

Bob Davidson, a publicity man for the GSRA and a resident of Tracy, shares many of the same feelings as Beck.

"Altamont has reputation of being very cold and windy," he said. Also, a lot of racing fans are from the San Jose area and it may be a long drive for them."

There is a possibility the races next year could be run on Sunday afternoon when the speedway is not at windy.

"We're still trying to decide what day to run it on," Davidson admitted. "We'll just have to reorganize our program."

Davidson says the drivers have mixed feelings about the track and that this may be a reason why few drivers showed up at the Friday night competition this summer.

"Some of the drivers liked it and some didn't," he said. "Some of the top drivers didn't like the idea they had to start behind the slower drivers in a half-mile race. Altamont is a very fast and also a dangerous track. Possibly some of them were afraid of getting hurt. However, many other drivers really liked the track."

Davidson says the Altamont racing may pick up some additional financial help next season.

"There's a possibility that Shasta Berverages may help sponsor the competition," he said. "That would help us out great financially. Altamont has been operating virtually on a shoestring basis."

As of right now, however both Davidson and Beck are thinking towards next year: and hopes of a better season.

BULK BEEF
"BARGAINS?"

"SIDE OF BEEF —
78¢ A POUND"

Sounds like a beef bargain, but is it really?

Let's check it out. Buying beef in carcass form — whole carcasses, sides, fore and hindquarters, split sides and quarters — calls for more buyer awareness than buying retail cuts at the supermarket. When buying carcass beef, more factors should be considered.

Whenever you see a carcass beef ad, don't just consider the advertised price per pound, ask yourself these questions: (1) what is its USDA quality grade?; (2) what is the "real" cost of the beef you would take home? When you've answered these questions, you'll be able to decide whether the beef is really a bargain.

What is the USDA Quality Grade?: Low quality beef may not be a bargain at any price. Make sure of the USDA quality grade before you buy. If the grade isn't mentioned in the ad, call and ask about it. If it's a low grade or isn't graded be careful. Grades are a reliable guide to eating quality; without them you're on your own. Since grading is a voluntary USDA service, not all beef is graded. Beef that is graded will bear one of the eight USDA beef quality grades—from highest to lowest: Prime, Choice, Good, Standard, Commercial, Utility, Cutter, and Canner. The carcass beef buyer should understand the differences among the top four, all of which apply to young animals. The last four — USDA Commercial, Utility, Cutter, and Canner — apply to older animals. Beef in these lower grades is much less tender and generally is used only in processed meat items.

USDA Prime — The top grade; provides the ultimate in tenderness, juiciness, and flavor.

USDA Choice — Not quite as juicy and flavorful as Prime, but still very high in quality; the grade most commonly found in supermarkets.

USDA Good — Only slightly less tender than Choice, but less juicy and flavorful than the top two grades.

USDA Standard — Fairly tender, quite lean, but less juicy and flavorful than top three grades.
